Network Registration

Overview: This guide explains how to register your computer on the network.

Registration ensures that only permitted computer systems are connected to the Resnet network. When you register, your student number is associated with your computer.

Residents should note that once they have registered a machine they can be held responsible for the contents of and any problems incurred by that machine. Residents are therefore strongly discouraged from using their details to register other people's machines.

Systems which are not registered will not be able to access the full resources of the Resnet network or any services outside of their college - this includes Internet.

Preparation: You will need your ResnetID to register your computer.

Procedure:
1. Go to the CITG website at http://www.citg.uq.edu.au
2. You will be automatically redirected to the registration page http://netreg.citg.uq.edu.au
3. Click on permanent registration to launch the Network Registration wizard.
4. Follow the instructions on screen. Additional programs are optional and do not have to be installed if you don't want them. Most can be downloaded from the Resnet website at a later date if required.
5. Enter your ResnetID when prompted for a username and password. Please note that this is not the same password you use for MyUQ.
6. Once your username and password has been accepted you will see a screen stating that your registration has been successful.
7. Wait for at least 10 minutes before restarting your computer.
8. Once your computer has restarted go back to the CITG website. If your registration was successful you will see the CITG homepage.
